TEACH THEM THRIFT

Our National Bank And Trust Company Advise Young to Save

START A SAVINGS ACCOUNT

Cashier Betts of The Peoples National Bank has ideas, new ideas. He believes that the old-fashioned New England virtues of economy and thrift that our forefathers set such store by—they were the foremost tenets of that famous philosopher, Benjamin Franklin—should be revived, and that it would be a good plan to begin with the next generation, our boys and girls.

In furtherance of this idea, he is making a campaign to induce these young people to start savings accounts with his bank, as they will see on reading his bank's ad. in this weeks Transcript.

The Scribe feels like speaking a hearty "Amen" to his efforts and those Cashier Porter of the Delaware Trust Company is making towards the same end. Both banks in this new move will contribute to the public good, as well as to their own interests.

Could the boys and girls of Middletown and the country around only realize the great and far reaching importance of learning to save in early life, they would willingly do so if with no higher motive than that of pleasure, since for every pennyworth of present self denial these virtues cost they return in later years, when the need is greater, tenfold more pleasure.

Just a little economy in candy, jewelry, amusements and in other tastes which the young often too freely indulge, and you will find to your surprise in a few years, that seemingly out of nothing you have gotten that very desirable thing called "a bank account." Then, meanwhile your fund is getting bigger, you will find it very handy to finance your calf and pig club ventures, etc.

But what is far more important still, this early habit of saving and self-denial may play an important part in the formation of your character, in fact, may so shape your whole after life in determining the choice of a trade, business or profession, that in your later years some of you may look back and truthfully say, "That first dollar I put in my savings account changed my whole life for the better."

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH NOTES

EPISCOPAL

Sunday, February 13th. The 1st Sunday in LENT.

Services: 10.30. Morning prayer and sermon.

11.45. Sunday School.

7.30. Evening prayer and address.

Meetings: The Parish Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the Rectory on Friday afternoon, from two until four o'clock. Let us have a large attendance.

Wednesday, February 16th. Evening prayer and sermon by the Rev. A. E. Clattenburg, Rector of St. Peter's Church, Hazelton, Pa.

A Lent in Earnest: As Christians we find ourselves in adverse surroundings of temptation and worldliness. Each spring we come to a season of the church year specially full of helps to our souls' welfare. It provides instruction and encourage to self-examination and repentance. It would give us clearer views of truth and duty. It would filter our daily life, that our Christianity might be purer. Shall this be so for each one of us? The principles put into practice now are far wider than the range of the 40 days. They apply to the whole 365 of every year. Because of this it is so easy to forget them So our church calls on us now specially to put them in force, while she would have us remember and live by them always. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Many Condensed News Items of the Past Week

IN THIS AND NEARBY POINTS

Next Monday, February 14, will be St. Valentine's Day.

To-day (Saturday), February 12, is Lincoln's birthday, a legal holiday.

New Castle is to ask the Legislature to legalize its purchase of the two water and light plants.

Poultry thieves operating with a large wagon have been robbing roosts in the Fieldsboro and Odessa sections and thus far have not been detected.

The House of Congress Monday passed the Senate bill to permit the construction of a $40,000,000 bridge across the Delaware between Philadelphia and Camden, N. J.

The State Highway Commission of Delaware is preparing to begin work on the boulevard through Smyrna as early in the spring as possible. Bids for letting the contract will be opened on February 16.

Wednesday was Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Lenten season of fasting and prayer observed by the Episcopal and Catholic churches and to an increasingly great extent by other denominations who see in the custom, a wise and salutary element.

Announcement is made by the United States Civil Service Commission of an examination for clerk-carrier to be held in Newark on Saturday, February 26. The subjects in which the competitors are examined are, spelling, penmanship, copying, letter writing and arithmetic.

The Twentieth Century Club of Smyrna celebrated their twenty-third birthday as an organization Tuesday with a club luncheon that in many respects eclipsed any social affair of its kind they ever held. The weather was pleasant and delegations and visitors from all parts of the State were in attendance.

The Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C., which is the greatest permanent government exhibition hall in America, has signally honored the Delaware Canning Club girls by recently inviting them to exhibit the ten best jars of fruit, vegetables and meats that they had packed in 1920 by the one period cold pack method.

Owing to the supply of labor having improved during the winter the Blackbird timber men have been aided greatly in getting out wood. Saw mills are receiving orders for building material to be used in remodeling and constructive work on various farms in this section. Much of this work was neglected during the period of the war.

Many Joining Farm Bureau

"I signed one hundred per cent. of the farmers seen," said R. W. Willey of Kent County, after completing his route in the Stanton-Newport community last Thursday. The drive for membership in the New Castle County Farm Bureau is now in full swing and will be completed this week.

The drive started strong in Hockessin community with 70 per cent. of the farmers secured as members. The per centage will be greatly increased as the majority of the refusals wished a little time and will sign when seen this week.

Odessa turned in a remarkable report of only one absolute refusal for the whole community. Chairman P. E. Pleasanton said, "We are after the prize over here."

It is safe to predict that 80 per cent. of the farmers of New Castle County will be members of the organization when the campaign is complete.

In a few weeks a state meeting will be held at Dover where the State Federation of Farm Bureaus will be perfected, policies of the organization adopted and the feasibility of employing an executive secretary discussed.

"Dollar Day" in Wilmington

Under the direction of the Mercantile Section of the Chamber of Commerce, Wilmington merchants are making elaborate preparations for the annual mid-winter Dollar Day, which will be observed on February 16. They propose to give everybody in Delaware an opportunity to realize personally the purchasing benefit to be derived from their application of their Dollar Day slogan "Stretching the Dollar." The reputation of Wilmington's Dollar Day is nation-wide, but the coming one promises to eclipse all former efforts to give the greatest possible value to customers.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Austin, of near Mt. Pleasant, announce the engagement of their daughter Mary Hilda to Mr. Norman S. Bendler.

The wedding will take place in the near future.

A New Dwelling

A large number of carpenters are now engaged in building for Mr. Joseph Berkman, a modern dwelling, on East Cochran street, and hope to have the house ready for occupancy in the early spring.

NEW CENTURY CLUB MEETING

One of the most delightful afternoons of the club year was spent Tuesday, Feb 8th, when Dover Club furnished the program with Mrs. Walter Morris as chairman. The first was the "Spook's Minstrels" which was very clever and entertaining. The "end men" Mrs. Frank Davis and Mrs. Burton, each sang a delightful solo and responded to encores, Mrs. Davis singing the well-loved old song "Ben Bolt", and Mrs. Burton, "My Alice Blue Gown" from the opera "Irene".

Mrs. Herbert Smith then entertained with readings. which was followed by a sketch "The Three O'clock Train" acted by Mrs. Walter Morris, Mrs. Frank Davis and Miss Nellie Downs and every minute was enjoyed.

Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, and wafers were served.

The guests from Dover were: Mrs. Walter Morris, Mrs. Frank Davis, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Danner, Mrs. Walter Powell, Miss Nellie Downs, Mrs. McDaniel, Mrs. Colona, Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Burton, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. G. W. Tebo, Miss Mollie Kellum, Miss Ella Downs, Mrs. Hutton, Mrs. Walter Massey, Mrs. Raleigh, Mrs. Dunn, Miss Jettie Cowgill, Mrs. Thornburgh and Mrs. Robert Lewis.

Next Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 15th, at 2.30 P. M., Dr. R. W. Cooper, of Newark, will address the club. All members are earnestly requested to be present to hear Dr. Cooper.

11.45 A. M. Sunday School. Splendid attendance last Sunday. Lets make it even better next Sunday. We would like to see every officer, teacher and scholar in his or her place. You are missed if you are not present.

6.40 P. M. Junior League meeting.

7.30 P. M. Evening worship with sermon by the Pastor.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock.

A most cordial welcome awaits all who come to any of these services. We desire to extend a very cordial invitation to any strangers or visitors who may be in our town at any time. We would suggest that our church members and friends invite their friends and company to worship with us.

Missionary Meeting

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of Bethesda M. E. Church, met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Ginn on Monday evening. A large gathering was present, thus showing interest in this important work. The devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. W. K. Betts, and the program in charge of Mrs. E. P. Roberts, which was wide in its scope, consisting of readings by Mrs. Roberts, Miss Jones, Miss Redman, and Mrs. Charles Stewart, and a piano solo by Miss Edna Wise. The mite box opening netted $20.22.

The W. F. M. S. was in charge of the president, Mrs. V. P. Northrup, and at the close of the business session, interesting articles pertaining to the work in the foreign field were read by the president and several members of the society. During the social hour delicious refreshments were served, consisting of brick cream, home-made cake, cocoa, salted peanuts and mints.

Auto Accident

In an automobile accident at Ginn's Corner, Saturday evening, a Stutz roadster belonging to Mr. Virden Marshall, of Philadelphia, was badly damaged by running into a large Mack truck which was standing in front of Hart's garage taking oil. Fortunately the five occupants of the car were not seriously injured. They included Misses Frankie Melson and Ollie Dukes and Mr. James J. Walker, of this town, and Messrs. Virden Marshall, who was driving the car and Joseph Golf, both of Philadelphia.

Miss Melson received the most serious injuries, when a piece of glass from the windshield lacerated her foot. Her right arm was also badly sprained. Dr. J. D. Niles, of Townsend, treated those injured, after which they returned to Middletown.

The automobile party was proceeding to Georgetown, where they were to spend the week-end with a friend, when the accident occurred.

To Celebrate 34th Anniversary

Appoquinimink Tribe, No. 24, Improved Order Red Men, of Odessa, will celebrate their 34th anniversary on Tuesday, February 15th. The Great Chiefs of the Great Council of Delaware will be present. Keokuk Tribe, of Wilmington, will be present to initiate seven candidates. Wishing all brothers to be present Seneca Tribe, No. 44, of Middletown, and Mohawk Tribe, No. 55, of Townsend, are invited to attend the meeting at 7 P. M.

Lyceum Male Quartette

The MEISTERSINGERS are coming to the New Century Club, Tuesday, Feb. 15th, at eight o'clock. This means one of the most attractive and enjoyable entertainments of the season. This quartette with their organ chimes have played and sung their way into the hearts and homes of all the great west.

We feel that it is unnecessary to urge anyone to attend this attraction. The fact that you have the opportunity of hearing a group who have been singing together in every section of the United States during the past 11 years, and the fact that you want to hear this quartette render its varied program means that you will be present. Admission 50c and 35c. Proceeds for benefit of school.

Large Public Sale

The public sale of the late Lester M. Naylor, which took place at "Sugar Loaf" farm, near McDonough, on Feb. 2d, was one of the largest of the season, and judging from the prices realized for both stock and implements, the local farmers still have confidence in future prospects for their business. The total amount realized from this sale of Personal Property, exceeded $9,000.

Card of Thanks

STATE AND PENINSULA

One of the most successful suppers ever given in Georgetown was served Monday evening by the ladies of the New Century Club.

A handsome baptismal font has been presented to the Elkton Presbyterian Church by the late Miss Mary McIntyre in memory of her father the late Rev. James McIntyre.

Sneak thieves visited the Hanover Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, Sunday night, ransacked the lockers in the gymnasium and took $10 from clothes hanging on the walls.

Because they canned beets, corn and tomatoes better than any other girls in Delaware, products of Mary E. Smith and Catherine Stuart, of Georgetown, will be exhibited at Washington.

Subscription lists to the $60,000,000 secured bond issue of the Pennsylvania Railroad were opened and closed last Friday in New York, indicating an over subscription of the issue. The bonds bear 6 1-2 per cent interest and mature in 15 years.

The First Central Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, will start work shortly on the new church building. Tentative plans for the new structure are under supervision of Professor Warren P. Laird, of the University of Pennsylvania.

At a meeting of the Wilmington Methodists this week Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, educational secretary of the Committee on Conservation and Advance, described the centenary movement as the greatest in the history of Protestant Christianity.

The Delaware Bankers' Association, comprising nearly all bank officials of the State, unanimously indorsed a revision of the banking laws of Delaware. After some discussion a tentative measure was drawn up with the aid of the State Banking Commissioner, which will be presented to the Assembly.

Elaborate plans for developing Bowers Beach into a popular bayside resort are being formulated by a New York syndicate, which last week purchased the old Beach Hotel from Graner & Hubbard. General T. Coleman duPont is said to be interested in the syndicate, which proposes to demolish the old hotel and erect a modern structure accommodating several hundred guests.

Pretty Wedding at Camden

Miss Mary Evelyn Jolls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jolls, of Wyoming, and Lieutenant Deck, of Washington, D. C., were married Thursday afternoon, Feb. 3d, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Camden, by Rev. Benjamin Fish Thompson, rector of Christ Church, Dover, and St. Paul's. Miss Elizabeth Jolls, the bride's sister, was maid of honor; Captain Hill, of Washington, was best man; little Mary Cooper, daughter of Dr. Linford Cooper, of Pennsylvania, was flower girl; Master Thomas Roe, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Roe, of Dover, was ring-bearer; ushers were Willis C. Jenkins and Clarence Clarke. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Robert Lindale, of Wyoming. A reception followed the wedding, being held in the club house of the Round Table Club. The bride cut the wedding cake with her husband's sword. The newly wedded couple left for New York where they sailed for Germany, the groom having been ordered to Coblentz to join the American Army of Occupation.

New Income Tax Proposed

A corporation tax bill and new income tax measure replacing the present income tax law were introduced in the House Monday night, by Representative Clark. Under the provisions of the new income tax law, one per cent. will be levied on incomes under $3,000; two per cent. on incomes from $3,000 to $10,000 and three per cent. on those above $10,000. This money will be used for school purposes. The bill provides for exemption for a single person up to $1,000 and for a married person up to $2,000. This bill would require the payment by every citizen of the State of an income tax of not less than $5 annually. This latter provision, means that everyone would pay a tax regardless of the exemption clause, that clause simply denoting the amount of income allowed before the tax would begin in cases of persons having large incomes.

See Ethel Clayton in "The 13th Commandment" at the Opera House Monday evening.

Old Landmark To Go

We are reliably informed that the Delaware Trust Company will begin in a short time to dismantle the old brick store building and dwelling, on the northwest corner Broad and Main streets, where they will have erected a modern banking house.

The removal of this old brick landmark, and the handsome new building which is to replace it will be a great improvement to the appearance of the business section of this town, and the modern banking house will be both attractive and convenient to the patrons of the Delaware Trust Company.

DELAWARE COLLEGE

Proposition to Change The Name to "The University of Delaware"

TO AID WOMANS' COLLEGE

DOVER, FEB. 7—Urged by Dr. Walter Hullihen, President of Delaware College, Representative Medill introduced a bill in the House to-day proposing a change in the name of the college into "The University of Delaware."

Dr. Hullihen has for some time advocated the proposed change, pointing out that the institution is a university in every thing but name. A group of colleges at Newark, under one head, such as the Women's College, engineering department, arts and science, agricultural department, extension department, summer school are all under the supervision of the college. The change would in no way effect the appropriations, and would not make the institution more expensive to operate, and would give it a better standing in the college world.

Representative Medill also introduced a bill providing for the appropriations for Delaware College for the next two years.

The appropriations asked for would total $425,886.14, and in addition, the Legislature is asked to authorize the issuing of bonds to the amount of $410,000, to provide new buildings at the Women's College and at the college farm.

The items in the appropriation bil follow: Maintenance of Delaware College, $83,500 a year for 1921 and 1922; maintenance of Women's College, $53,000 a year for two years; extension department to take advantage of federal appropriations, $15,407.60, for the two years and also $6003 for the two years to enable the state to receive federal funds under the Smith-Lever act. This makes a total of $425,886.14, for the two years including $91,475.54 deficit that has been created.

AID FOR WOMEN'S COLLEGE

The other bill would authorize the State treasurer to issue bonds to the amount of $240,000 for the erection and equipment of a dining hall and dormitory at the Women's College, to be known as Kent Hall. The bonds would bear interest not exceeding 4½ per cent. and $5000 would mature each year, starting with 1922, to 1969. It also authorizes the issuing of $140,000 for the erection and equipment of a dormitory at the same college, to be known as New Castle Hall. Bonds for this would mature $5000 a year from 1932 to 1959. The third provision is for the issuing of $30,000 of bonds for the building of a structure at the college farm to be used for exhibiting and judging purposes. The bonds would mature $5000 a year from 1941 to 1946.

Canners Losing Money

There is a great deal of talk and speculation in this community at the present time, over the future prospects of the tomato crop. It is a known fact that last year's pack is now being disposed of by the canners of this peninsula at a fearful loss, and it is also true that a large number of canneries will not be operated during 1921.

The revenue derived from the tomato crop in past years has proven to be a mortgage lifter for many of our Delaware farmers, and to lose this valuable crop will mean a serious loss to them.

The Transcript scribe has not talked with Mr. Baker, owner of the local plant, and is not in a position to say the plant will or will not be operated this season, but with the prospects for exceedingly low prices for canned goods of every description during the next few years, the future for both grower and packer is not very encouraging.

Germany Says She Will Not Pay the Reparations Fixed by Supreme Council.

'WOULD ENSLAVE THE NATION'

Putting on Poor Face for Effect—American Unpreparedness Receives Some Blows—Dawes Vigorously Condemns War Management Critics—Latest Cabinet Guesses.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Germany says she neither can nor will pay the total of reparations that was fixed by the supreme council—54 billions in 42 years and a tax of 12 per cent on her exports during the period. Eminent financial and economic experts of the allied countries and America agree that Germany will find it impossible to pay that sum and survive. Nevertheless, it is probable that the German representatives in the forthcoming London conference will sign the agreement laid before them, and that the allies thereafter will get from the defeated country as great a proportion of the 54 billions as they can, modifying the terms from time to time.

The official protest of Germany was voiced by Dr. Walter Simons, the foreign minister, and what he said was concurred in by the reichstag parties through their leaders, with the exception of the ultra radicals, who gloried in the painful position of the government. Doctor Simons asserted that the obligations thus imposed on the Germans would mean the complete economic enslavement of the people, and particularly of the workers. He said the government would offer counter proposals at the London meeting.

Among the people of France there was satisfaction with the reparations plan, especially because it was expected that the first effective payments by Germany will make available for negotiations or for use as security the French share of the 60,000,000,000 gold marks in bonds already delivered by Germany to the reparations commission. Great Britain has agreed not to utilize her claim on Germany as a basis for loans during the next five years, and this gives France the opportunity to make use not only of her share of the bonds but also her part of the 12 per cent tax on Germany's exportations, to raise money to continue the work of reconstruction in northern France.

That tax on German exports is a feature that may cause a lot of trouble. By many it is held to be false economics that will react to the injury of other countries, and in Washington there is talk that our state department may feel called on to make formal protest. Lloyd George says the tax would be easy to collect, and he defends the plan in its entirety. If Germany should absolutely refuse to it, he asserts, "there is nothing for us to do but to apply the treaty literally."

That opinion favoring German claims in the matter may be based on false premises is made clear by the report of the conference of financial experts held in Brussels, in which Germany is shown just how to wipe out the deficit of 76,000,000,000 marks in her 1920 budget. The experts found Germany was deliberately putting on a poor face for the purpose of showing the world her precarious financial condition and her difficult situation. Certain of her expenses were multiplied 75 times over those of 1919, and certain of her taxes vastly below those the people of the allied countries are paying. Furthermore, the budgets of 1919 and 1920 carried a number of credits which were only partly disbursed, such as 16,500,000,000 marks for the allied armies of occupation expenses, of which only 4,500,000,000 marks was spent. The budget for 1920 carried 42,000,000,000 marks for execution of the peace treaty, while only 17,000,000,000 marks had been paid out up to December 1 last.

Disarmament, a small army and other forms of unpreparedness got some hard knocks last week. In the first place the senate naval affairs committee put the snuffer on the Borah resolution for a naval construction holiday, after hearing Admiral Coontz, chief of naval operations, and Admiral Taylor, chief constructor of the navy. Both opposed the plan for a cessation of naval construction for six months. They said it would cost as much to do this as to continue to build, as contractors would be able to collect large damage claims from the government. Furthermore, they see no need for an investigation as to what constitutes a modern navy, being convinced by investigations already made that the capital ship is not obsolete and that the present program of the United States is correct.

General Pershing appeared before the house naval committee and gave a warning against unpreparedness and pacifism. He expressed approval of a world conference on disarmament, but said the United States should proceed with its present army and navy programs until at least five great powers have entered into a definite agreement.

On the other hand, the house foreign affairs committee reported favorably a resolution authorizing the President to invite the nations of the world to send delegates to a conference to provide for disarmament.

In the house, the fight to prevent reduction of the regular army below 175,000, was opened by Chairman Kahn of the military affairs committee. He said President-elect Harding told him recently at Marion that he favored an army of 175,000 men, but that he hoped some day it could be cut down to 150,000. Mr. Kahn also disclosed Mr. Harding's belief that congress should enact legislation providing voluntary military training for 150,000 men annually.

Meanwhile economy of the most rigid sort is being forced on our regular army by great deficiencies in funds for the remainder of the fiscal year. The shortage in the quartermaster corps alone is said to be $94,000,000. In order to reduce the prospective deficits to the lowest possible minimum, the War department ordered reduction of 40 to 60 per cent in the number of civilian employees in the army; reduction of the consumption of gasoline and lubricants by 50 per cent; allowance of clothing, equipage and supplies cut to the lowest possible limit, repaired shoes and salvaged uniforms to be issued wherever possible; substitution of canned food for fresh wherever possible, and expenses for transportation, communication and fuel cut to the bone. Much of the vocational training, upon which the recruiting campaign was based, must now be abandoned, as all the teaching will have to be done by army officers.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, former chief of supply procurement for the American army in France, made lively and interesting two sessions of the house war investigating committee. Severely condemning what he characterized as political attempts to discredit the people who won the war, he defended the work of his department and of the army in general, and denied that there was waste and extravagance in the liquidation of American accounts in France and the sale of surplus stocks to the French government. As to the alleged payment of excessive prices for equipment and material, he said this was necessary to get the job done quickly and was justified by the fact that the army did the job. General Dawes did not mince his language, and what he had to say of our "pink tea" diplomats in Europe who delayed matters with their red tape was tonic in its harshness. The discussion at one time turned on Great Britain, and the general shouted:

"I am no more ashamed to stand up here for Great Britain than for the United States. It seems to be fashionable in American politics to attack Great Britain. I am not in politics, and I am not going to be. And I thank God that in a crisis like we had there were no bickerings between the English-speaking people. Great Britain took over 40 per cent of our troops. Of course General Pershing gave them five divisions, but it had to be done to save the allies' line."

In these remarks Mr. Dawes, who has been a leading probability for the place of secretary of the treasury in the Harding cabinet, seemed to remove himself from the lists. Certainly what he said so frankly will not make him very acceptable to the professional Irishmen of America who are mainly responsible for the anti-British propaganda. However, at this writing he is still among the cabinet possibilities. The latest list, as reported by the correspondents with Mr. Harding in Florida, is:

Secretary of State—Charles E. Hughes of New York.

Secretary of the Treasury—Charles G. Dawes of Illinois or A. W. Mellon of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of War—John W. Weeks of Massachusetts.

Secretary of the Navy—Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Attorney General—Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio.

Postmaster General—Will H. Hays of Indiana.

Secretary of Agriculture—Henry C. Wallace of Iowa.

Secretary of Labor—John J. Davis of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of the Interior—Albert D. Fall of New Mexico.

Secretary of Commerce—Still vacant.

Mr. Davis, slated for the labor portfolio, was formerly a steel worker and is now director general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The fight over wages, between the railway executives and the railroad brotherhoods, is on before the railway labor board, and accusations have been flying thick and fast. The executives asked permission to abrogate the national wage agreements entered into during the war, which would mean the lowering of the present wage scale. The brotherhood leaders immediately entered vigorous protest, asserting that the rail chiefs have conspired to overthrow the railroad labor board and to crush, once for all, the existing labor organizations. They said they could show that if the bankers who are responsible for the fiscal needs of the railroads since their return to private ownership would perform their duty, the roads could be adequately financed and their solvency maintained.

A veiled threat was found in the statement of Grand President Grable of the maintenance of way employees, who said: "The whole thing simmers down to a question of whether the employees are to secure their rights by justice and the proper legal avenues or by the use of economic force. This is the question which is now up for answer, as much as that of whether wages are to stay up or go down."

President Wilson was appealed to by both sides, but decided, it was said, to take no hand in the fight.

The Fordney emergency tariff bill took up a lot of the senate's time, but there was little prospect of getting it to a final vote. An attempt to apply cloture was defeated by the Democrats, who then embarrassed the Republicans by consenting to have a showdown on the measure about February 16. The Democrats asserted the Republican leaders had been bluffing about their desire to pass the bill and were buncoing the farmers.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer put an awful dent in the illicit booze industry last week by an order forbidding further withdrawals from bonded warehouses of any liquor except industrial alcohol, wines for sacremental purposes, and liquor for retail druggists, who will be permitted to withdraw not more than five cases under each authorization. He also ceased issuing permits for wholesale liquor dealers. Having clamped down this lid, certain of the chief's leading aids were sent to the Canadian border to try to stop the smuggling of liquor there.

PLAN MEXICAN MONTE CARLO

Gambling of Almost Every Description Conducted Openly in the Border City of Juarez.

El Paso.—After having been closed for three months, Juarez's big gambling house, "The Tivoli," across the Rio Grande from El Paso, will soon be re-opened. It will run for six months at least, because 1,010,100 pesos has been guaranteed the state government of Chihuahua for the concession. One-half of this sum will be turned back to the city of Juarez and most of it will be spent in improving schools in Juarez.

Public lotteries have been running for three months. They are known as federal district lotteries, being under the direct supervision of the federal government, which disposes of the lottery concession for 25 per cent of the proceeds. One just held was for $100,000 gold and included the northern district of Chihuahua. Many Americans held tickets, which sold for $5 each.

"Keno," a famous Mexican game was never stopped in Juarez, it being held as an amusement other than gambling. As many players who desire buy cards for a given sum; numbers are called by chance drawing and all the proceeds from the sale of cards goes to the winner, less 15 per cent for the house.

Bull fights are still held in Juarez always on Sunday. Usually, in order to help draw crowds, part of the money is given to charity.

WAR INQUIRIES IN CONGRESS NEAR END.

Washington.—All of the House War Investigating Committees will quit hearing witnesses this week after nearly two years of inquiry at home and abroad. The printed documents, including testimony and reports run into thousands of pages.

General Pershing will not appear before the committee which heard Charles G. Dawes last week, although the General will file a statement.

Final reports will be submitted to the House before March 4, and, as happened heretofore, Democratic members will present minority views.

No action ever was taken by the House on a resolution to investigate the investigating committees.

NITROGLYCERIN KILLS EIGHT

Boys Fish Can From Creek and One Uses Ax on It

BIG EXPLOSION FOLLOWS

Container Thought To Have Floated Down From Magazine Upstream —Blast 75 Feet From School.

Lawrenceville, Ill.—Eight persons are dead and another probably fatally injured as the result of the explosion of a can of nitroglycerin at Cross Roads School, two miles west of here shortly after noon.

The dead are Emmett Bunyan, 35 years old, the teacher, and seven pupils at the school. A brother of one of the victims is expected to die.

Several other children received minor injuries in the explosion, which occurred when one of the boys attempted to cut the top from the can with an ax.

Bunyan and five of the boys were killed instantly, and the other two died several hours afterward. The injured were taken to their homes and to hospitals in Vincennes, Ind.

Those whose injuries were slight were the victims of flying glass, every window in the schoolhouse, a one-story frame structure, being broken by the explosion. The structure was otherwise undamaged.

The explosion was plainly heard in Lawrenceville and persons hurrying toward the schoolhouse were met by children rushing screaming from the scene.

Neighbors living near by were the first to reach the school and calls were immediately sent to Vincennes for ambulances to take the victims to hospitals for medical attention.

The explosion occurred about 75 feet away from the schoolhouse. All of those killed were grouped about the can and the rest of the pupils were either in the school or playing in the yard behind it.

The authorities were told that the boys, who were at play, had fished the can from a creek running by the school yard. It is believed that the container had floated down from a nitro-glycerin magazine about three-quarters of a mile away.

All the pupils who were killed were the children of farmers and oil men residing in the vicinity of Lawrenceville. Bunyan lived in the country near here.

HALT TO RECRUITING ORDERED.

War Secretary Complies With Congress' Request.

Washington.—Complete cessation of army recruiting was ordered by Secretary Baker in accordance with the direction of Congress, as embodied in a joint resolution passed over the veto of President Wilson. The War Secretary acted to stop recruiting through orders sent all recruiting offices within a few hours after Congress had completed adoption of the resolution which directs cessation of all recruiting until the army is reduced to 175,000 men.

MISTRIAL IN LYNCHING CASE

Alabama Jury Discharged After Being Out 38 Hours.

Hamilton, Ala.—A mistrial was declared in the case of Sergt. Robert J. Lancaster, Alabama National Guardsman, indicted in connection with the lynching of William Baird, a miner, near Jasper, on January 13. The jury had been out 38 hours when the foreman reported an agreement on a verdict was impossible and Judge Sowell discharged the jury.

SNOWBIRD SAVES DAN.

Synopsis.—Warned by his physician that he has not more than six months to live, Dan Failing sits despondently on a park bench, wondering where he should spend those six months. Memories of his grandfather and a deep love for all things of the wild help him in reaching a decision. In a large southern Oregon city he meets people who had known and loved his grandfather, a famous frontiersman. He makes his home with Silas Lennox, a typical westerner. The only other members of the household are Lennox's son, "Bill," and daughter, "Snowbird." Their abode is in the Umpqua divide, and there Failing plans to live out the short span of life which he has been told is his. From the first Failing's health shows a marked improvement, and in the companionship of Lennox and his son and daughter he fits into the woods life as if he had been born to it. By quick thinking and a remarkable display of "nerve" he saves Lennox's life and his own when they are attacked by a mad coyote. Lennox declares he is a reincarnation of his grandfather, Dan Failing I, whose fame as a woodsman is a household word. Dan learns that an organized band of outlaws, of which Bert Cranston is the leader, is setting forest fires. Landry Hildreth, a former member of the gang, has been induced to turn state's evidence. Cranston shoots Hildreth and leaves him for dead. Whisperfoot, the mountain lion, springs on Hildreth and finishes Hildreth and devours him, thus acquiring the taste for human flesh. Dan discovers Cranston in the act of setting a forest fire.

Dan felt himself straighten; and the color mounted somewhat higher in his brown cheeks. But he did not try to avenge the insult—yet. Cranston was still fifteen feet distant, and that was too far. A man may swing a rifle within fifteen feet. The fact that they were in no way physical equals did not even occur to him. When the insult is great enough, such considerations cannot possibly matter. Cranston was hard as steel, one hundred and seventy pounds in weight. Dan did not touch one hundred and fifty, and a deadly disease had not yet entirely relinquished its hold upon him.

"I do very well, Cranston," Dan answered in the same tone. "Wouldn't you like another match? I believe your pipe has gone out."

Very little can be said for the wisdom of this remark. It was simply human—that age-old creed to answer blow for blow and insult for insult. Of course the inference was obvious—that Dan was accusing him, by innuendo, of his late attempt at arson. Cranston glanced up quickly, and it might be true that his fingers itched and tingled about the barrel of his rifle. He knew what Dan meant. He understood perfectly that Dan had guessed his purpose on the mountain side. And the curl at his lips became more pronounced.

"What a smart little boy," he scorned. "Going to be a Sherlock Holmes when he grows up." Then he half turned and the light in his eyes blazed up. He was not leering now. The mountain men are too intense to play at insult very long. Their inherent savagery comes to the surface, and they want the warmth of blood upon their fingers. His voice became guttural. "Maybe you're a spy?" he asked. "Maybe you're one of those city rats—to come and watch us, and then run and tell the forest service. There's two things, Failing, that I want you to know."

Dan puffed at his pipe, and his eyes looked curiously bright through the film of smoke. "I'm not interested in hearing them," he said.

"It might pay you," Cranston went on. "One of 'em is that one man's word is good as another's in a court—and it wouldn't do you any good to run down and tell tales. A man can light his pipe on the mountain side without the courts being interested. The second thing is—just that I don't think you'd find it a healthy thing to do."

"I suppose, then, that is a threat?"

"It ain't just a threat." Cranston laughed harshly—a single, grim syllable that was the most terrible sound he had yet uttered. "It's a fact. Just try it, Failing. Just make one little step in that direction. You couldn't hide behind a girl's skirts, then. Why, you city sissy, I'd break you to pieces in my hands!"

Few men can make a threat without a muscular accompaniment. Its very utterance releases pent-up emotions, part of which can only pour forth in muscular expression. And anger is a primitive thing, going down to the most mysterious depths of a man's nature. As Cranston spoke, his lip curled, his dark fingers clenched on his thick palm, and he half leaned forward.

Dan knocked out his pipe on the log. It was the only sound in that whole mountain realm; all the lesser sounds were stilled. The two men stood face to face, Dan tranquil, Cranston shaken by passion.

"I give you," said Dan with entire coldness, "an opportunity to take that back. Just about four seconds."

He stood very straight as he spoke, and his eyes did not waver in the least. It would not be the truth to say that his heart was not leaping like a wild thing in his breast. A dark mist was spreading like madness over his brain; but yet he was striving to keep his thoughts clear. Stealthily, without seeming to do so, he was setting his muscles for a spring.

The only answer to his words was a laugh—a roaring laugh of scorn from Cranston's dark lips. In his laughter, his intent, catlike vigilance relaxed. Dan saw a chance; feeble though it was, it was the only chance he had. And his long body leaped like a serpent through the air.

Physical superior though he was, Cranston would have repelled the attack with his rifle if he had had a chance. His blood was already at the murder heat—a point always quickly reached in Cranston—and the dark, hot fumes in his brain were simply nothing more nor less than the most poisonous, bitter hatred. No other word exists. If his class of degenerate mountain men had no other accomplishment, they could hate. All their lives they practiced the emotion: hatred of their neighbors, hatred of law, hatred of civilization in all its forms. Besides, this kind of hillman habitually fought his duels with rifles. Hands were not deadly enough.

But Dan was past his guard before he had time to raise his gun. The whole attack ws one of the most astounding surprises of Cranston's life. Dan's body struck his, his fists flailed, and to protect himself, Cranston was obliged to drop the rifle. They staggered, as if in some weird dance, on the trail; and their arms clasped in a clinch.

For a long instant they stood straining, seemingly motionless. Cranston's powerful body had stood up well under the shock of Dan's leap. It was a hand-to-hand battle now. The rifle had slid on down the hillside, to be caught in a clump of brush twenty feet below. Dan called on every ounce of his strength, because he knew what mercy he might expect if Cranston mastered him. The battles of the mountains were battles to the death.

They flung back and forth, wrenching shoulders, lashing fists, teeth and feet and fingers. There were no Marquis of Queensberry rules in this battle. Again and again Dan sent home his blows; but they all seemed ineffective. By now, Cranston had completely overcome the moment's advantage the other had obtained by the power of his leap. He hurled Dan from the clinch and lashed at him with hard fists.

It is a very common thing to hear of a silent fight. But it is really a more rare occurrence than most people believe. It is true that serpents will often fight in the strangest, most eerie silence; but human beings are not serpents. They partake more of the qualities of the meat-eaters—the wolves and felines. After the first instant, the noise of the fight aroused the whole hillside. The sound of blows was in itself notable, and besides, both of the men were howling the primordial battle cries of hatred and vengeance.

For two long minutes Dan fought with the strength of desperation, summoning at last all that mysterious reserve force with which all men are born. But he was playing a losing game. The malady with which he had suffered had taken too much of his vigor. Even as he struggled, it seemed to him that the vista about him, the dark pines, the colored leaves of the perennial shrubbery, the yellow path were all obscured in a strange, white mist. A great wind roared in his ears—and his heart was evidently about to shiver to pieces.

But still he fought on, not daring to yield. He could no longer parry Cranston's blows. The latter's arms went around him, in one of those deadly holds that wrestlers know; and Dan struggled in vain to free himself. Cranston's face itself seemed hideous and unreal in the mist that was creeping over him. He did not recognize the curious thumping sound as Cranston's fists on his flesh. And now Cranston had hurled him off his feet.

Nothing mattered further. He had fought the best he could. This cruel beast could pounce on him at will and hammer away his life. But still he struggled. Except for the constant play of his muscles, his almost unconscious effort to free himself that kept one of Cranston's arms busy holding him down, that fight on the mountain path might have come to a sudden end. Human bodies can stand a terrific punishment; but Dan's was weakened from the ravages of his disease. Besides, Cranston would soon have both hands and both feet free for the work, and when these four terrible weapons are used at once, the issue—soon or late—can never be in doubt.

But even now, consciousness still lingered. Dan could hear his enemy's curses—and far up the trail, he heard another, stranger sound. It sounded like some one running.

And then he dimly knew that Cranston was climbing from his body. Voices were speaking—quick, commanding voices just over him. Above Cranston's savage curses another voice rang clear, and to Dan's ears, glorious beyond all human utterance.

He opened his tortured eyes. The mists lifted from in front of them, and the whole drama was revealed. It had not been sudden mercy that had driven Cranston from his body, just when his victim's falling unconsciousness would have put him completely in his power. Rather it was something black and ominous that even now was pointed squarely at Cranston's breast.

None too soon, a ranger of the hill had heard the sounds of the struggle, and had left the trysting place at the spring to come to Dan's aid. It was Snowbird, very pale but wholly self-sufficient and determined and intent. Her pistol was cocked and ready.

CHAPTER III.

Dan Failing was really not badly hurt. The quick, lashing blows had not done more than severely bruise the flesh of his face; and the mists of unconsciousness that had been falling over him were more nearly the result of his own tremendous physical exertion. Now these mists were rising.

"Go—go away," the girl was commanding. "I think you've killed him."

Dan opened his eyes to find her kneeling close beside him, but still covering Cranston with her pistol. Her hand was resting on his bruised cheek. He couldn't have believed that a human face could be as white, while life still remained, as hers was then. All the lovely tints that had been such a delight to him, the play of soft reds and browns, had faded as an afterglow fades on the snow.

Dan's glance moved with hers to Cranston. He was standing easily at a distance of a dozen feet; and except for the faintest tremble all over his body, a muscular reaction from the violence of his passion, he had entirely regained his self-composure. This was quite characteristic of the mountain men. They share with the beasts a passion of living that is wholly unknown on the plains; but yet they have a certain quality of imperturbability known nowhere else. Nor is it limited to the native-born mountaineers. No man who intimately knows a member of that curious, keen-eyed little army of naturalists and big-game hunters who go to the north woods every fall, as regularly and seemingly as inexorably as the waterfowl go in spring, can doubt this fact. They seem to have acquired from the silence and the snows an impregnation of that eternal calm and imperturbability that is the wilderness itself. Cranston wasn't in the least afraid. Fear is usually a matter of uncertainty, and he knew exactly where he stood.

"Oh, I wish I could shoot you, Bert."

ORANG FEARED THE CAMERA

Photographer's Presence of Mind Probably Saved Him From Death or Fearful Injury.

As a rule orangoutangs, the fiercest of the apes, are caught young and tamed before they are shipped to Europe and the United States. One of these animals that arrived in London came with the best of characters. He was considered a very tame, steady-going creature, and an expert was engaged to photograph him.

The man entered the orang's cage as he had entered many others. He had not exposed many plates before he saw that the animal was intent on mischief. He was a very powerful beast, and the man would have stood no chance at all if the orang had attacked him.

The man's only chance was to use the camera as a weapon. Making a sign to the keeper to keep silent, the photographer pointed his hand camera at the orang and with slow and steady step approached him. The keeper was outside the door ready to open it; but neither of them uttered a sound. The photographer was relieved to see the orang gradually retreat and at the same time to be able to rise from the crouched and menacing position he had taken. Once the creature was on the move the man knew he had a chance. He succeeded in working the orang around to the corner furthest from the door, which the keeper had silently and slowly opened. Still pointing his camera at the beast the man very slowly backed out of the cage, the door was slammed to and he was safe.

Bull Baiting.

This was a sport once popular in England, but declared illegal in 1835. A bull was attacked by dogs, and sometimes the nostrils of the bull were blown full of pepper to increase his fury. Another form of the sport was to fasten the bull to a stake by a long rope and then set bulldogs at him, one at a time, which were trained to seize the bull by the nose. The bulldog seems to have been developed for this sport from a short-eared mastiff called "alaunt."

Every time a wise man fails it teaches him something.

IN SPRING BLOUSE

Gay Colorings Promise to Feature Coming Season.

Tomato Red Is Given as One of the Bright Particular Spots in the Offering.

Blouses in suit colorings, having been given the center of the stage for the winter season, are even now being replaced by more brilliant ones for spring, according to a fashion authority. Tomato red is given as one of the bright particular spots in the offering. Red having been neglected for years, has quite suddenly become a most important note. It is early to talk of organdies and cotton fabrics, but in passing it is a temptation to say that tomato and flame are colors often repeated in these materials.

A blouse of two or more fabrics offers fascinating possibilities for the combination of color, and black and white is always stunning. In one blouse black expresses itself in satin, softened with sleeves and a gilet or yoke of white georgette banded with black. Such a blouse makes of a seperate satin skirt a modish costume and in this instance a white faced satin hat completes the picture.

Since crepe dresses are quite the newest note it is natural that blousemakers should turn their attention to this fabric as well. It is not to be supposed that lingerie blouses and lingerie frocks will be neglected, but there is every justification for the prophecy that fabrics of the crepe order will be made into utility dresses, and waists range in color from navy, black and brown to the lightest pastel shades and white. Georgette, always important from the blouse viewpoint, is combined with crepe for many of these models. In fact, present indications point to a season of interesting and out-of-the-usual combinations of materials, often of the same color.

MAY RIVAL CHEMISE DRESS

Recently Created Garment of Paris Origin, Bids Fair to Find Favor With Milady.

Paul Poiret never made a better thing than the chemise dresses with which he startled Paris many years ago. Since that time, writes a Paris fashion correspondent, he has created many different models, but none has had the enduring vogue of the peasant chemise. This is no reflection on his resourcefulness and creative ability, but demonstrates that there are only a few ideas in the world which would have sufficient vitality to survive.

Recently there has appeared on the horizon of fashion another genre of dress, created and launched by Madeleine Vionnet, which bids fair to have the same vitality and endurance as the chemise dress. As Poiret gathered his ideas from the crudest form of peasant garb, Vionnet has drawn inspiration from the dress of the highly civilized Greek at the period of his most artistic development.

Just as M. Poiret, in adopting the crude single garment of the unlettered man of toil, embellished it, Vionnet has stripped the Grecian designs of all complications and presented them with a stern simplicity that holds only the faintest suggestion of their origin. While Poiret embellished, Vionnet simplified. He took simplicity and complicated it. She took complication and simplified it. He took the workaday blouse and made it acceptable to the modern woman of fashion. She took the complicated draperies of the effete Grecian civilization and wrought them into practical, sensible twentieth century dresses.

IN THE GRAY AND BLUE SERGE

This is a smart trotteur suit of gray and blue duvetyn united with braiding. The new short jacket is one of fashion's latest cuts.

FASHION NOTES OF INTEREST

The extremely decollete evening gown has disappeared.

Wired tunics of metal lace will be worn over satin slips.

Tailored and fluffy ruffles blouses share honors this season.

Paris favors the long, narrow muff with gathered ends.

Even bathing slippers will have the popular ankle strap.

Duvetyn vestees, pipings and facings, in some contrasting color, are used on serge and tricotine frocks.

Green and red seem to be the dominant colors for evening wear, particularly when velvet is the material chosen.

Grays and browns will be popular this spring, but the newest note of the season will be the very extensive revival of the use of pencil-striped materials.

One of the latest effects in French neckwear is a little plaited ruche of colored organdie, hemstitched around the edges and worn close about the throat.

WHAT COLOR SHALL I WEAR?

Tone or Shade Should Be Chosen to Suit the Wearer; Harmony the Watchword.

Color has a decided influence on its wearer, for immediately after the question: "What shall I wear?" comes the all important one of the choice of color. What use is color without the right color, tone or shade or combination of both or all three? Most of us choose color for becomingness only, and yet, though a color be actually unbecoming, if it be the latest and smartest, the consciousness of this fact will endow the wearer with a contented look and a glow of satisfaction reflected in her eyes, resulting in a flattering remark among her friends of :"How well she looks," and then the desired effect is achieved after all.

Colors are no longer chosen according to age as our mothers and grandmothers were prone to do. No color limit, no hard and fast rules of color before and after thirty in this age and era! On the contrary, the range is unlimited and ever varying. The necessary thing is to know your type and then to know color as applied to yourself. Whereas the unsophisticated girl chooses bright colors that please her eye, the sophisticated one chooses colors that match her eyes or hair. A French couturiere suggested that one should match one's eyes in the evening shades and one's hair in the daytime. This is a wise and a safe rule. There are those of us, however, who would go about eternally clad in sober browns if we followed this rule, and for those we would put down the law of harmony in contrast—and what rule was made not to be broken?

Fashion Hints.

A good deal of gray is worn this season. Gray ribbon, for instance, is used to bind blue serge, and gray vestees and collars are often used instead of white. Gray hats are popular, too.

Formal Hats.

Rather large, formal hats have brims slightly wider at the sides.

HAT, HANDBAG, SCARE MATCH

Sets Are Most Attractive and Very Original in Design—Embroidered Hat Continued.

The embroidered hat is being continued, writes a Paris correspondent, who says one of the novelties is the use of wool zephyr in tapestry effect, as the whole hat is covered with an embroidery, the background as well as the design being embroidered on a sort of canvas foundation to form the entire hat. Elaine, of the rue de la Paix and the rue des Petits-Champs, who always makes a feature of embroidered hats, is making much of wool embroidery. The special feature of this house is to have the hat and handbag match, and at the present time the scarf also. These matched sets are most attractive and very original in design.

One very striking set consists of a tam o' shanter and medium large handbag made entirely of wool embroidery. The background is of dark taupe, while the design, in scrolls and circles about the size of a 25-cent piece, is in blue, red, green, yellow and brown. Another interesting set, consisting of sailor hat, handbag and scarf, is in dark brown and beige wool. The dark color forms the background, while the light beige is introduced in the form of conventional flowers.

Way to Mend Gloves.

To mend gloves that have been torn between the fingers, use the buttonhole stitch in preference to the more common over-and-over stitch, which tears out again almost immediately. Use a very fine needle. First work around the entire edge of the tear, with the buttonhole stitches placed not too close together. The stitches thus made provide a firm edge for the second sewing. Next place the edges of the tear together and work over them with medium close buttonhole stitches.

Fur Handbags.

Among new handbags featured in the smartest shops, those made of fur or fur and fabric in combination are attractive novelties.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 13

LESSONS ON CITIZENSHIP. (May Be Used With Temperance Applications).

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 22:15-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Matt. 22: 37-39.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt. 23: 1-39; Mark 12:13-17, 28-37; Luke 20:20-26, 41-44; Rom. 13:1-4; Phil. 3:17-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Land We Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Country.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Getting Ready for Citizenship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Standard of Citizenship.

I. The Tribute Money (vv. 15-22).

The Pharisees and Herodians purposed to entrap Jesus and bring Him into conflict with the Roman government, so they came to Him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" At this time the Jews were galling under the yoke of the Roman government. Some even denied the right to pay tribute to the government. To have answered this question by "yes" or "no" would have involved difficulties. To have answered "yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of all that the Roman government did. To have answered "no" would have at once brought Him into conflict with the government. It is not an easy matter for a Christian always to determine his right relation to civil government. Many a minister has made a failure of his work because he tried to solve the problem. Christ's reply to this question, properly understood and applied, is the final word on the subject. Until the civil authorities demand of us that which is a violation of God's law, we are bound to render unto them obedience. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" means the highest obligation. Since enjoying His protection and care it is our duty to owe all allegiance to Him, to yield our lives to Him in service, worship and praise. Every one who enjoys the benefits of civil government is obliged to pay the taxes which are necessary for the support of that government, and every one who receives God's favor is placed under a like obligation unto Him.

II. The Great Commandment in the Law (vv. 34-40).

For the third time in one day the Lord is tried by hard questions. While these questioners were actuated by wrong motives, we may be forever glad that they put these questions to Him because of the invaluable truth which His answers set forth.

1. The first commandment (vv.34-38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." This means that supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. This at once shows that man's supreme obligation is to God. It is wrong to evaluate man's character on the basis of his morality as expressed in his relation to his fellow man. Real righteousness is doing the right thing with God. The greatest immorality of which a man can be guilty is his failure to respond to the demands of God. The one who does not supremely and with undivided affection love God is the greatest sinner. The one outstanding condemning sin is unbelief in God and refusal to love and obey him.

2. The second commandment (vv. 39-40). The second commandment is like unto the first in that it centers in love. It is not said that it is equal unto the first; that would not be true. A man may love himself, but not supremely. One's love for his neighbor may be either too much or too little. The measure set is love for self. We should love God better than ourselves. He is worthy of all our affections and demands all. Love is not mere emotion, but a supreme desire for the welfare of another and a willingness to do everything possible to secure that end. The command to love our neighbor is involved in the command to love God. To pretend to love God is folly if we do not love our neighbor. No one does really love his neighbor who does not love God. To attempt to establish a brotherhood among men without the recognition of the Fatherhood of God is utter nonsense. Men become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. It is true that in the sense of being God's creatures all men are God's children, but in the New Testament sense men are only God's children as they are in Christ. Beware of the man who is constantly crying for the brotherhood of man and is at the same time rejecting Jesus Christ. The only real way to bring in the brotherhood of man is to preach Jesus Christ unto the race and secure their acceptance of Him. We thus become brothers in the real sense of the term, when we have God as our Father. All obligations resting upon man are embraced in these two commandments. Those who conform their lives to them are God's children and are the very best citizens.

Hand in Hand.

Gladness and good will go hand in hand. Luther said: "My soul is too glad to be at heart the enemy of any man." This gladness and good-will was the constant quality of the Master's life. There was about Him an undiscourageable friendliness which no one's hostility could spoil.

Deserves Reverence.

High office among men, when legitimately attained, deserves reverence. High office always and everywhere is a shadow of the majesty of God. The commandment to honor an earthly parent includes in its spirit the duty of honoring all who have upon them this certificate of greatness.—H. P. Liddon.

MRS. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, mother of the first American soldier killed in France, who gives entire credit for recovery of her health to the well-known medicine Tanlac.

The following remarkable endorsement of Tanlac was given recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, at the Gresham Memorial Home, Gavin Park, Evansville, Ind., which home was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana, as evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son, Corporal James B. Gresham, the first American soldier killed in France. Expressions of sympathy were received by Mrs. Dodd from all parts of the United States, and the newspapers of the country carried the story of the first "war mother."

The shock of her son's death resulted in the serious breakdown of Mrs. Dodd's health, but everyone will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. When seen at her home recently she made the following statement, giving the entire credit for her recovery to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

"After my dear boy's death I had a general breakdown in health," said Mrs. Dodd. "At first it was just indigestion. My food used to upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully, which wasn't much hardship, as I lost all desire to eat. Then I had an attack of rheumatism, with severe pains in my shoulders, back and arms. Sometimes I used to suffer a great deal, and my joints would get all swollen up and stiff. I was able to do very little about the house, and at times couldn't even cook a meal. I got very nervous and restless, and at night would lay awake for hours, and lost many a night's sleep as a consequence.

"A friend of mine had received a great deal of help from Tanlac, and it was she who advised me to try it. I am so glad I did for it proved the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a good appetite and seemed to settle my stomach so that I was no longer troubled with indigestion. I don't know what it is to have rheumatic pains now, the swelling and stiffness has all gone out of my joints and I am able to do the work of the house with the greatest ease. My nerves are now steady and strong. I sleep fine at night, and I feel better in health than ever before in my life. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me, and shall recommend it every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

His Choice.

He was a small Galloway boy, and his mother was reproving him at the breakfast table for restlessness.

"Try to behave better, John," she said; "you know it is only very good boys who go to heaven."

"No."

"Dae hens?"

"No."

"Then," said John, resignedly, "I'll just gang tae the ither place where I'll maybe get milk an' eggs."—London Tit-Bits.

Waking Up

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Greg Morton had been for two years a clerk in the store of Seth Gray. He had saved several hundred dollars and both his employer and his daughter Ruth, who helped in the store, liked him and admired his thrifty ways. Ruth had been almost unconsciously an important element in forming the character of the young man, but store, Ruth, thrift and humble contentment went all to the winds one day, when a letter arrived informing Morton that he had fallen heir to a small fortune.

He resigned his position in the store by telephone, half wild with the immediate possession of several thousand dollars representing accumulations on investments, the principal of which was to become his further on. Then a few days later he appeared at the store, resplendent as to attire and jewelry adornment.

"I've been so busy getting used to being rich," he declared, "that I couldn't get around before. Mr. Gray, if you need any money, I've got a thousand or two you can have to expand your business."

"You're a good-hearted fellow, Greg," spoke the storekeeper, "but slow and sure is my motto, and I never borrow. Ruth is upstairs in the living rooms."

"I think I'll speak a word or two to her, if you don't object."

"I won't, and neither will Ruth. We miss you too much for that."

Morton sought out Ruth. As his eyes fell upon her neatly garbed form and expressive face, a vague sense of abandoning good old friends assailed him, but the emotion was only temporary. Glare and glitter had already fascinated him, and he was eager to get back to comrades who were indulgently helping him to spend his newly acquired wealth. She greeted him in a friendly, familiar way, as was her custom with him, but there was a certain shyness, he quickly noticed, which he attributed to a realization on her part if change.

"I went shopping yesterday, Ruth," he said brightly, "to get my cousin a sunburst pin, and I've bought you one, too," and he extended a little velvet case exposing a pretty bauble with half a dozen diamonds in it.

"I can't accept such an expensive present from you, Greg," spoke Ruth in a subdued tone, "but give me that rosebud in your buttonhole."

If Greg followed an impulse, he would have gathered her into his arms and told her what he thought of her. Already, however, the wiles of a new social influence had enveloped him. The idle and pleasure seeking had claimed him as their own, particularly for his money. There was a group of newly made comrades who hung about him daily. There was a Miss Vera Burgoyne to whom he had been introduced, his senior by a few years, but artificially concealing the fact. She had set her cap to capture a young man hardly her equal socially, but with promising prospects. At heart a coquette, she had dazzled Morton quite, and his male friends had made him believe that a match with Miss Burgoyne would put him up in the world materially. They feasted on his generous bounty and flattered and cajoled him. He was in for jollity, and when one day he appeared on the street with a hat controlled by a tiny wire, and shot it up from his head in greeting acquaintances, his chums noted him "so original." When again Morton drew a mock revolver from his pocket, snapped it and landed a cigar between his teeth, it was denominated "the classiest hit of the season." He was courted like a king, but one day—

Morton never forgot it. He had discovered that he had used up his entire cash, even overdrawing at bank. On top of this came word that the concern in which his capital was invested had failed and his entire principal was swept away.

Late nights, excitement, his loss brought on a natural reaction.

Deserted by his friends, in debt and harassed with new troubles, he fell ill and lay in fever and delirium for over a week.

"Queer," was his first word, faintly spoken, as he opened his eyes to normal coherency.

"Ah, better? That's good," spoke the bluff, hearty tones of Seth Gray. "We thought you would be better cared for here than at the hotel. One good thing, we haven't been pestered with those new friends of yours. Miss Burgoyne sent a servant to inquire after you, once, only."

"That's more than I expected," said Morton, "for she dropped me in a flash when she heard of my loss. Not that I am sorry. False, selfish humanity. And you took me in. Well, I'll be able to get about in a day or two and relieve you of my charge. I suppose you feel a bit hard at me leaving you the way I did—"

"Oh, yes," observed Mr. Gray satirically, "so much so that Ruth and I quarreled over which should sit up nights and care for you. So much so that I am going to offer to take you into partnership, if you're over your evil dream, and have waked up to the practical issues of life."

Greg Morton buried his head in the pillow to hide his tears. Big-souled Seth Gray—how he blessed him. Artless, loving Ruth—how he realized her true worth at last, and, when he told her so, knew that he had won a treasure among womankind.

A Good Medicine For The Grip

George W. Waitt, South Gardiner, Me., relates his experience with the grip "I had the worst cough, cold and grip and had taken a lot of trash of no account. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done me any good whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the cold and grip have left me."

Boys and Girls Should Start Savings Accounts

Three things every boy and girl should early begin to cultivate: 1, a good character; 2, a sound body; 3, a SAVINGS ACCOUNT. No. 3 helps the other two.

The Peoples National Bank is especially interested in aiding boys and girls in this vital matter of learning to save money.

In this extravagant age, Thrift is almost a lost virtue. But the lad or lass who practices Thrift is far more likely to succeed in life than those who do not.

The Tractor That Stays

IT is pretty generally accepted now that the farm power of the future will be generated by kerosene and other low-grade, low-priced fuels. A tractor that operates successfully on these fuels, insuring dependable power at drawbar and belt, is the tractor that will stay because it will pay.

International 8-16 Tractor has established its reputation for satisfactory performance in the school of experience. It has passed successfully through long and rigid tests under actual field conditions in all sections of the country.

Belt work is becoming more and more important. The use of small threshers, ensilage cutters, etc., combined with a suitable tractor, is making the farmer more and more independent.

All of this emphasizes the value to you of an International 8-16 tractor that is designed to do tip-top belt work as well as taking care of field and road jobs.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

For those who are fond of parsnips the following recipe will be novel and most nourishing:

Savory Parsnips.—Wash parsnips thoroughly and boil in salted water until tender. Drain, wipe dry and peel. Cut in two lengthwise or leave whole as desired. Surround each with a coating of sausage meat, roll in flour, arrange in a flat dish, sprinkle with salt and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven. Garnish with parsley.

Parsnip Fritters.—Cook parsnips until tender, drain, peel and mash, season well with salt, pepper, butter, and drop by spoonfuls into a fritter batter, then fry in deep fat. Serve hot with maple sirup or with a lemon sirup.

Cabbage With Cheese.—Shred cabbage to make four cupfuls, cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and leave in a heated colander at the side of the range while preparing a white sauce by blending together two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, then pouring over gradually one and one-half cupfuls of milk; cook until smooth and thick; season with salt and pepper and add four tablespoonfuls of grated American cheese, and beat until well dissolved. Lift the cabbage to a hot vegetable dish, pour the sauce over it and serve immediately. A cabbage head cooked after removing the hard heart, then served on a chop plate cut in pie-shaped pieces with the cheese sauce poured over it makes a dish which is both attractive and tasty. Sift paprika over the dish for a garnish.

Prune Tapioca.—Soak fifteen large prunes in twice as much water as will cover them. In the morning stone and chop the prunes. Add enough water to the liquid in which they soaked to make four and one-half cupfuls. Bring this to a boil with the prunes, two-thirds of a cupful of tapioca, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of sugar in a double boiler for forty minutes. Serve cold with cream. Flavoring and nuts may be added if desired.

Kindly words, sympathizing attentions, watchfulness against wounding men's sensitiveness—these cost very little but they are priceless in their value.—F. W. Robertson.

SANDWICHES FOR THE WINTER PICNIC.

What's a picnic anyway without some good sandwiches? For those who enjoy peanut butter the following will be welcome:

Peanut and Tomato Catsup Sandwich.—Add two tablespoonfuls of cold water to three tablespoonfuls of peanut butter to make it of the desired consistency for spreading. Beat until creamy and add two tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup. Mix thoroughly and spread on thin slices of buttered bread. The butter may be omitted if desired.

Squirrel Sandwiches.—Mix together one-half cupful each of mixed ground nutmeats and ground grated carrots. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of salad oil and one teaspoonful of lemon juice. Mix well and spread on buttered bread.

Pressed Eggs.—Chop fine six hard-cooked eggs, one green onion, one-half a green pepper. Mix together with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful of prepared mustard. Place half of the mixture in a small greased loaf pan, press down and add a layer of chopped ham, using one and one-half cupfuls. Finish with the rest of the egg mixture. Pour on two tablespoonfuls of stock to help bind it together and press down well. Keep in the refrigerator until molded well enough to slice. Serve in place of cold meat or use as sandwich filling.

Brookfield Sandwiches.—Mix one cupful of sour cream with three eggs, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of sugar, a few grains of cayenne, one teaspoonful of mustard and the same of salt. Put into the double boiler and beat until the eggs are well mixed. Set over boiling water and stir until smooth and thick. Add three tablespoonfuls of vinegar boiling hot and set aside to cool. Put one and one-half pounds of American cheese through the meat chopper with two green and two red peppers. Mix together and add enough cream to thin the dressing for spreading. This may be used for salads as well as sandwich filling.

Another sweet sandwich is prepared as follows: Chop together one cupful of seedless raisins, one cupful of English walnuts, one-half cupful of granted coconut and mix well. Moisten with a little cream and spread on the whole wheat bread.

SPRING SUITS THAT ARE VERY TEMPTING

SPRING, having dawned over the horizon in the world of fashion, lures us to study of new suits—and an early Easter is an incentive for making an immediate choice. The new models are as "easy to look at" as a pretty woman—and as hard to resist. There is nothing quite so tempting—except the new hats to be worn with them—and both have beautiful innovations in styles to offer.

At this writing, dark blue, beige and gray are in the ascendant in colors for suits, but not monopolizing attention, and there are many shades in them. Colors are quiet, designs unusual and much attention given to embellishment, in which embroideries lead. Two very smart exponents of the styles in the embroidered coterie are shown in the suits pictured. A dark blue twill at the left has a coat that is plainly of Chinese inspiration, hanging in straight, cape-like lines, and with flaring sleeves. The silk embroidery is in self-color. Nearly always there is a gleam of silver or gold thread in these embroideries, or the introduction of a little soft contrasting color, sparingly used. The skirt in this model is very practical—wide enough for comfort—and plain. It makes a fine background for a handsome sash of satin, bordered with a looped fringe. The coat fastens only at the neck, revealing a frilly blouse beneath. It is a youthful, springtime model, open at the throat and cool looking.

The suit at the right of the picture will delight those who love trim, straight lines; it hardly acknowledges a curve and emphasizes this fact with buttons that extend to the top of the standing collar. Flaring sleeves, embroidery about the arm's-eye, and large patch pockets that extend below the bottom of the coat, are all noteworthy, good points in the smart style of this model.

Everything Glitters

THE goddess of Fashion must have had a twinkle in her eye this year when she turned her thoughts toward spring millinery, and almost everything in hats reflects that twinkle. Colors are reserved and rich—they can afford to border on the sedate, for the most comprehensive description of the new modes is found in the phrase "Everything Glitters." It fell from the lips of an expert millinery authority, after a study of a great collection of new models, but is not meant to convey that everything has a hard brilliance. Hats are radiant with a play of light over surfaces that catch and reflect it.

The outstanding feature in spring hats is cellophane materials, sometimes alone, but oftener in conjunction with other fabrics. Fashion has led up to this brilliant stuff by the vogue for beads and embroideries and, after several seasons of experimenting, manufacturers have advanced cellophane to the place of first importance. The new hats—of whatever material—are soft and light, their lines beautiful and becoming and their colors rich. Laces, flowers, bows, veils and handsome ornamental pins are the trimmings featured.

The group of models shown above includes four hats that are representative of the season. At the top a chic street hat has a crown of cellophane and a draped brim of corded moire, all in gray, with two coral pins by way of finish. It is a simple but immensely clever bit of artistry. At the right another gray hat of cellophane, with a gray rose of folded ribbon at the front, divides honors with a very handsome navy veil. A lovely dress hat at the left has a body of black hair-braid with rows of narrow cellophane applied and a flange of malines about the graceful brim. A wreath of fine flowers and a generous sash of French blue ribbon completes a hat that every woman loves. A similar style below, of navy hair-braid and cellophane with a wreath of old blue poppies, fulfills the mission of a less picturesque but equally pleasing demi-dress hat which is equal to many occasions. Black and brown are great favorites and the refinement of lace and malines in both colors is an allurement that designers make the most of.

Sleeves Lengthen to Elbow.

There is just sufficient controversy on the question of sleeve lengths to make one feel a bit uncertain as to how to decide the question. There should be no cause for uneasiness over the selection of short sleeves, notes a fashion writer, for it is only the more tailored blouses and the severe street dresses that have lengthened their sleeves below the elbow. Fewer extremely short ones are being shown, and as these abbreviations have lengthened into elbow-length sleeves, so have slender straps widened until the evening gown may be spoken of as having a tiny-fitted shoulder cap.

ROAD BUILDING

CAUSE OF DAMAGE TO ROADS

Pernicious Practice of Overloading Small Trucks With Narrow Tires Is Responsible.

With the rapid increase in the number of motortrucks operated over our highways, it has been found that many of what are called "improved" roads have failed to withstand the additional traffic imposed by the new form of local freight transport. This has given rise to new problems of road construction and maintenance, and in some states has led to the enactment of laws prohibiting the use of the large capacity truck, on the assumption that it is the heavy truck that does most of the damage to the road. The first result of this legislation has been to encourage the pernicious practice of overloading, under which trucks designed to carry safely a limited weight are forced to carry a large additional load. The tires of the various sizes of truck are made of a sufficient width to prevent their breaking or cutting the road surface when loaded to their proper full capacity, but when an overload is added the tire width is necessarily too narrow, and the danger of injury to the road becomes manifest. The tire width required for certain loads has been carefully worked out after many years' experience, and most states have laws fixing the weight that is borne by an inch of tire width. In all standard types of truck the width of tire corresponds to the load that can be safely carried, and truck manufacturers warn their customers against carrying a greater weight than that for which each size of truck is designed.

The enactment of a law prohibiting the use of large capacity trucks leaves the same tonnage of freight to be moved, and with the heavy truck barred resort must be had to the smaller sizes. This means in many cases less economical and efficient service, and prompts the manufacturer or merchant to try to make up for loss in load capacity by increasing the size of the load. With this additional load the gross weight on the tire exceeds the factor of safety, and thereby increases the danger of breaking the road surface. It is self-evident that a truck designed to carry two tons with corresponding width of tires, must do more damage to the road when it carries a ton or so more of load than its tires were intended for.

A striking example of the relation of overloading to impact is given in the preliminary report of the United States bureau of public roads, in which it is stated that a three-ton truck, with a load of five tons, running at a speed of 15 miles per hour over a two-inch rut, had an impact of slightly over 17 tons, while a 5½-ton truck with a load of 5½ tons, under the same conditions had an impact of only 12 tons. The fact that the overloaded truck had a heavier "unsprung" weight, that is, weight not sustained by springs, accounted to some extent for its greater impact, but there can be no question that the overloading was a material factor in causing the greatly increased wheel pressure on the road.

Against this danger truck owners are constantly being warned by truck manufacturers, who strongly advise that no truck should be made to carry a greater load than the weight defined by its classification. Some states have enacted laws imposing fines for truck overloading, but it will probably be found that enlightened self-interest will prove to be the best check on a practice that has been shown to be dangerous both to truck owners and drivers and the general public; and a source of injury to our roads that materially limits the benefits from the motortruck as a new agency for local freight transport.

Market Roads First.

"Transcontinental highways fill a useful place in our national life, but the really important road is the one from the farmer's gate to his market town," said President J. R. DAIRY POINTS

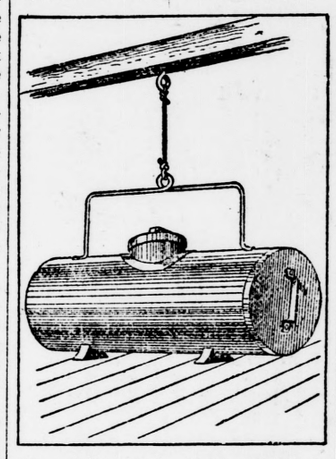
SWINGING CHURN IS FAVORED

Durability of Homemade Device Is Measured in Terms of Half a Lifetime.—Cost Is Small.

Consult your tinsmith, follow the specifications as outlined by Miss L. Dorman, a farmerette of Mississippi, and the results will be a swing churn—a product that is at once new, sanitary, and a labor-saver. It is a homemade device, its durability is measured in terms of half a lifetime, and the cost is negligible.

For a churn of two and one-half gallons capacity, obtain a heavy quality of block tin and shape it in an 18-



This Easily Made Swing Churn Is Merely Shoved Back and Forth When It Is Filled With Cream. It Is Quickly Cleaned and Keeps Out All Dust or Dirt.

by-20-inch square. Place it on 2-inch legs, arrange a handle for each end as propellers, and carve a 6-inch opening through the top for pouring the cream.

The covering to the opening fits snugly on the inside, like an old-fashioned bucket lid. A substantial wire handle is soldered at each end of the churn, with a ring in the center. One end of a cord is passed through the ring and the other fastened to another ring, or hook, in a beam overhead.

Ready for operation, the swinging device can be adjusted to any height. A small child can operate the churn, which is shoved back and forth. The sudden impact of the cream against the churn affords the friction for making the butter.—S. R. Winters in Popular Science Monthly.

SUCCESSFUL MILK CAMPAIGN

Dairy Division Co-operating With State Organizations to Promote Consumption of Milk.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture is co-operating in campaigns to promote a greater consumption of milk, and the results so far have been remarkable. Experts of the division cooperate with the extension departments of the state agricultural colleges in organizing the work and securing the aid of local boards of health, boards of education, chambers of commerce, welfare societies, and similar bodies. The work consists of child-feeding demonstrations, lectures, published material, etc. Special work is done in schools, homes and factories.

About 35 campaigns thus far have been conducted in this manner, covering the country from Boston to Seattle. Cities having an aggregate population of over 5,000,000 have had milk campaigns lasting from one to two weeks. Careful reports show that these cities have increased their milk consumption about 16 per cent since the beginning of the campaigns.

FALL FRESHENING IS URGED

Calves Are More Easily Raised and Cows Will Give More Milk—Farmer Has More Time.

The man who had his dairy cows freshen this fall is thanking his lucky stars that most of his work is coming when he has most time to do it and when dairy products bring a higher price. Men who have had experience with both spring and fall fresheners will argue that fall freshening is better because of the two advantages given here and because the calves are more easily raised and the cows in the course of a year will give more milk. Spring freshening has but few advantages despite the fact that it is the rule. The main part of the work comes during the summer, when one is busy in the field and flies annoy both cows and milker. Fall fresheners go dry in July and August, the time of year when milking cows is anything but pleasant.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

FURTHER USES FOR RADIUM

Its Employment in Pottery Is Said to Be Productive of Results of Great Benefit.

Water containing radioactive compounds is used as a curative agent for certain illnesses. Mere contact with such compounds for a sufficient length of time will make water slightly radioactive.

Pottery is now manufactured which has in it a small percentage of radioactive material. This is mixed with the clay and baked in the kiln. Water left in pottery of this nature for a short time will become radioactive by "induction," and a health-giving drink is made.

Such water may also be employed in the watering of plants with good results, since the presence of a radioactive compound near the roots of a plant is very helpful to its growth.—Popular Science Monthly.

EVERYTHING WAS ALL RIGHT

Judge Couldn't Be Spoiling the Water When He Didn't Use Any Soap in the Bath.

A serious inconvenience is caused in Australia by the lack of spring water. The trouble is partly overcome by the use of huge tin tanks in which the rain is caught.

Naturally, toward the breaking up of the dry season, water becomes very precious.

A judge, on circuit, arriving at a bush shanty, asked for a bath. Such a luxury was naturally refused, as there was only a little water left at the bottom of the tank reserved for drinking purposes, says the author of "Quaint Acquaintances."

When dinner was ready, as the judge could not be found, the landlord went to call him; whereupon a muffled voice issued from the tank, where the judge was bathing!

The landlord, justly furious, roundly abused his guest.

"Do not excite yourself," the latter observed, casually. "I am not spoiling the water, for I am not using any soap!"

PLOW IS USEFUL TO REMOVE SNOW

Drawing Given Herewith Clearly Explains Detail of Construction of Device.

EASILY ATTACHED TO AUTO

Wheel Plow Is Supplied With Shoes or Runners Which Keep It From Digging Into Roadbed—Quite Handy in Country.

If you live in the country or in the suburbs and do not wish to be marooned by every snowstorm, get a snowplow like that shown in the accompanying illustration, provided, of course, that you are the fortunate possessor of an automobile of some kind to which you can attach the plow. The drawing clearly explains the construction of the plow, which is the invention of Claude C. Hyde of Otisville, N. Y.

The plow consists of two side parts, placed directly in front of the front wheels, and a V-shaped middle part. The wheel plow is supplied with shoes or runners, which keep it from digging into the roadbed and are yieldingly attached with spiral springs so they may pass over rough places or obstacles in the road.

The middle plow may be raised or lowered so as to take as much snow from the road between the wheels as the power of the automobile engine will permit. When the plow is not needed, it may be removed in a few minutes and without the use of special tools.—Popular Science Monthly.

CARE FOR TIRES IN WINTER

They Should Be Partially Deflated if Car Is Used Occasionally—Repair Any Cuts.

If an automobile is used occasionally during the winter, it will not be necessary to remove the tires, but they should be partially deflated, according to the department of agricultural engineering of the University of Nebraska. The wheels should be supported by jacks.

Tires should not be left standing on greasy or wet floors. Grease is injurious to the rubber and moisture to the fabric.

If the car is stored for the winter, it should be jacked up and the tires removed. If there are any cuts in the rubber they should be repaired so that the moisture may not enter the fabric.

During the winter, after the casings have been wrapped in paper or burlap to keep them as dry as possible and to protect them from the sunlight, they should be placed in a dry room with a temperature ranging between 40 and 65 degrees. Inner tubes should be removed and either be deflated or rolled loosely with a slight air pressure left in them. The tubes should then be given the same care as the casings. Carefully avoid any contact with oil.

ANTI-FREEZE AGENTS FAVORED FOR WINTER

Most Motor Makers Recommend Alcohol and Glycerin.

Three Substances in General Use Which Can Be Prepared by Owner Without Consulting Any Professional Mechanic.

This is the open season for anti-freezing solutions, and car owners will save themselves much annoyance and considerable expense if they will but heed this warning and take ordinary precautions.

There are three substances in general use for making anti-freeze solutions, each of which can be prepared by the owner himself and used without having to consult the professional mechanic. Alcohol is probably the most popular of all anti-freeze agents. Glycerin has proved very effective, but its cost during the war made its use almost prohibitive to the ordinary owner. Calcium chloride is perhaps the most easily prepared solution of all and, for that reason, is widely used, but it is a dangerous solution to use. The commercial product, sold in solid form or in aqueous solutions as an anti-freeze mixture, is highly injurious because of the action on the components of the cooling system. Such alkaline solutions are productive of an electrical action wherever two dissimilar metals are utilized, such as the brass tubing of a radiator and the solder used at the joints, the iron water jackets and the brass or copper plates.

A summary of the opinions of motor car manufacturers as to the value of various anti-freeze solutions shows a decided preference for alcohol and glycerin. Neutral alcohol does not act on metal or on the rubber connections. But the alcohol in the solution will evaporate more rapidly than the water.

Fire extinguishers are something like life preservers. Maybe you won't ever need one, but if you do need it, you need it badly. Our advice, says Motor Life, is to find a place on the car to attach one conveniently and keep it there religiously against that emergency we hope will never come.

NATION IN DANGER

Farm Abandonment Has Created Most Serious Situation.

Food Supply Threatened Through the Drift of the Population to the Cities—Now Is Great Opportunity to Take Up Land.

The question, "How is the country to be fed if the population continues to drift to the cities?" is one that should create an agitation that will bring about a reply that will mean a solution. The census, recently completed, reveals a situation truly alarming, one that has never been known in the United States before. The urban population is now greater than that of the rural districts by about 4,000,000. Cities and towns, each with more than 2,500 inhabitants, contain 54,318,032 persons, or 51.4 per cent of the total population, while the farms and smaller towns together claim only 51,399,739 persons, or 48.6 per cent of the total.

As is pointed out by an influential Chicago daily, "the drift to the cities is thus proved and, reduced to figures, showing a top-heavy condition of the industrial life."

Farming is and must remain the basic industry of the world, and certainly should remain the basic industry of a nation with a continental area like ours. It is small profit to gain the markets of the world with manufactured goods if agriculture has decayed so badly as to furnish an uncertain subsistence for our people, and fluctuating crops are reflected in price changes that upset the economic life of the country. Yet we are within measurable distance of that condition, if the present or recent drift toward the cities continues.

Most writers on this topic take it for granted that young folks go from farms to cities merely to make more money. Doubtless that is something of a motive at all times and was a very strong one in the period immediately after the war, when city industries paid wages totally impossible for farmers to rival.

It is hoped that this drifting has reached its apex. Unless it has, and there still remains a possibility of its continuance, the effect cannot be foretold. The great wave of manufactures for war purposes has ceased, and with it the number of those employed in factories is diminishing by thousands daily. It is therefore hoped that there will again be heard the slogan, "Forward to the Land." If prices to which farm land has reached are prices prohibitive to many, the opportunity is still open elsewhere. There are states possessing large areas of good land that may still be had at prices within the reach of many, and it is doubtless true that in self-preservation it will be necessary to bring these lands under cultivation. The prices are not high, considering their value. Then, too, there are the lands of Western Canada, that hold out an inviting prospect. Reports from there show that the prosperity of the farmers there is not mythical. Farming there is conducted on scientific principles, and the climate is such as appeals. The production amply repays all the expenditure that may be made. The social conditions are of a character that make farm life a pleasure, and tends to keep the young man and young woman from pining for urban life with so many drawbacks. If conditions as above mentioned, showing such a large percentage of population in the cities and towns, continues, they will require food. The opportunity to supply it is by the means suggested. Go forward to the farm, become independent, and become a factor in supplying the world's needs in cattle, sheep, grain and such other commodities as the farm will produce and the resident of the city requires.—Advertisement.

Keep Your Blood Pure Nature Will Do the Rest

Did you know that ninety per cent of all human ailments depend upon the condition of your blood?

Nature gives her warnings in various unmistakable ways, so that when the appetite fails, and you become weak and listless and a general run-down condition seems to take possession of the whole body, it is an unfailing sign that impurities will steadily accumulate until your general health will be seriously affected. You should recognize the importance, therefore, of very promptly cleansing out the system, and keeping the blood supply pure and robust.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drugstore to-day, and note how promptly it builds up the appetite and gives new strength and vitality. Write for free literature and medical advice to Chief Medical Adviser, 153 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

A Sandy Inheritance

By RALPH HAMILTON

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

The young man looked fagged out as he came down the road and turned into Farmer Worth's yard to get a drink of water at the pump.

"You think you won't stop!" a voice startled him, and he arose to his feet, neither wishing to play intruder nor eavesdropper.

"Not I," came the prompt response. "I won't say that your offer isn't liberal, for a farmer, but they're paying a dollar an hour for carpenters and I've quite a knack that way."

Wayne Delmore had moved on and started for the road. A young man carrying a worn satchel came down the porch steps and swung through the gate. Their paths crossed, Delmore halted.

"I wasn't trying to listen," he said, "but it sounded as if you were turning down a job."

"Yes," acceded the other promptly, "looking for one?"

"I've got to, I guess," answered Delmore in a dull, weary tone. "Any use of a man who never handled a plow applying?"

"Abel Worth don't want a plow hand," came the reply. "It's a sort of superintendent or overseer he's after. Crippley, you know, and can't get around any too good. Are you quick at figures, and can you boss a gang of six?"

"I did some work of that kind over the state line," said Delmore.

"Well, it won't hurt to try your luck. I want a man who can watch the odd ends and keep the hands straight," advised Abel Worth. "Since my daughter went to work in the town I haven't anybody to keep track of things as she used to. You'll have to be manager, timekeeper and cashier. References? Security? You see, I must know that I am trusting an honest man, although you look that on sight."

"I am too honest and trustful, I've begun to think," replied Delmore, with a wan smile. "I have a letter from my last employer. Security, yes, if you'll consider sixty-eight acres just over the ridge, as that."

"Oh, you own some land hereabouts, then?" inquired Worth in manifest surprise.

"Yes, about a half quarter section. That's my trouble. I wanted to get a little farm and I traded a house and lot for the sixty-eight acres. The seller was a land shark. I've just looked it over. It's all sand and even a weed won't grow on it."

"Ah, I understand now. Yours are the third hands through which that triangular piece has passed in the last five years. So they hoccussed you? Too bad! Well, I'll be glad to give you a show. Got any traps with you?"

"At the depot—my trunk."

"We'll get that later. I will pay you $55." and Worth went into detail, then called his wife, explained matters, and Delmore found himself apportioned a neat bedroom, and was made aware of the nature of the work expected of him.

"You can hitch up the sorrel about four o'clock, if you will, and go and get your trunk," instructed Mr. Worth. At just six stop at Front street block in the town—anybody can direct you there—and call for my daughter in the office of Bird & Black, lawyers. She works there. Bring her home."

Six o'clock began a new and delightful chapter in the life of Wayne Delmore. A bright, pleasant, intelligent girl of eighteen, Ruth Worth was beautiful as well. She chatted with Delmore all the way to the farm. At the supper table she, as well as her father and mother, seemed glad to make the stranger feel at home.

Within a few weeks Delmore was domesticated and a new man in feelings and character. He had thrown the sand land to the discard.

"I'm so sick of it," he told Ruth one evening, "that I never want to think about it again. A man was around yesterday asking its price. I wouldn't talk to him. Because some one cheated me, I'm not going to play the swindler in turn."

Delmore at the end of the season was an expert in his new position. He was only too willing to continue in the same. Ruth had become the light of his life and he had won the sincere liking of every one about the farm. He was sent for in the field one day by Mr. Worth, who somewhat astonished him with the information that Ruth had telephoned from the law office to have him call her up. Delmore was equally amazed when the words came over the wire:

"If anybody comes to buy your sand property refuse to deal until I see you."

The Chautauqua entertainments will be held in the Assembly Hall Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, Feb 12th, 14th and 15th, afternoon and evenings. Tickets on sale, $1.25.

William C. Money and wife, Mrs. L. L. Maloney, Mrs. George W. VanDyke, Mrs. W. A. Scott, Miss Anna G. VanDyke, W. Hart Scott and Robert Beardsley and family motored to Wilmington on Tuesday.

POOR BLOOD IS JUST LIKE SLOW POISON

Makes You Feel Lazy And Discouraged. You Get Nothing Done

PEPTO-MANGAN PURIFIES

Tune Up Your Blood With It. Notice The Difference With Rich Red Blood in Your Veins

The man or woman or the child with a sickly-looking complexion, a pale wan face, has blood that is filled with poison. Instead of rich red blood coursing through their veins, they are trying to get along with blood that is weak and thin. It doesn't carry life-giving qualities through the body. You see those men and women every day. They are so tired. Their shoulders droop. They slouch. It is all they can do to get around.

As soon as you begin to feel that way take Pepto-Mangan, the well-known blood tonic. It will clear away the poisons and make your blood rich with red corpuscles.

Pepto-Mangan is prepared in both liquid and tablet form. One has the same medicinal value as the other. Take either kind you prefer. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," should be on the package. Advertisement.

NOTICE!

I beg to announce to my many customers and friends that in closing out business at the property which I sold last September and moved from on December 24, 1920. I had from $500 to $600 worth of stock on hand, which I moved to where I now live, and offer it at greatly reduced prices.

I also beg to state, I shall make up, and keep on hand, Women's House Dresses, Aprons, Underwear and Children's Clothes, just the same as I have been keeping and always had ready-sale for.

Laurel Editor Surprised

Edward M. Fowler, former editor and owner of the State Register, published at Laurel, has a letter acknowledging a debt for subscription, the sender inclosing four dollars in cash and stating: "Enclosed herewith is four dollars in payment for my subscription for the years of 1908 to 1911, with accrued interest. Hope you will pardon my longwindedness." The letter was signed "One who has turned to the right." Mr. Fowler is unable to learn who the sender is, as no name is signed to the epistle, and he has destroyed his subscription records for the years named. The letter was mailed in Wilmington. This unusual incident has put hope into Delaware-Maryland publishers that maybe some of their delinquents will send in their "conscience money."

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Favorite

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a favorite with the mothers of small children for colds, croup and whooping cough. Its pleasant taste and the prompt cures which it effects has won the good opinion of mothers everywhere. As this remedy contains no opium or other narcotic it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

New Prices FOR NEW GOODS

WE have taken our medicine in closing out at a loss most of our old stocks. As a result, we were in a position to restock our whole Store with perfectly new goods at the new lowered prices.

"Your Store has the largest and best selections of Dress Goods, Muslins, Percales, etc.", volunteered a lady in our Store the other day. "And your prices are so much lowered", she added. A number of our customers have made the same observation.

This lady's compliment, was merited, for on a recent visit to New York City, not only did we purchase, as we said in our last ad, "a fine lot of White Goods, cheap," but we also replenished our shelves, with the market's pick of all the newest Spring Goods of all kinds, Ginghams, Voiles, Percales, Organdies, etc, in the latest styles and in all the new colors, and best of all—at the present lowered figures.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan

AN AL-WEATHER CAR—this pretty thoroughly describes the Ford Sedan.

In rain or cold weather it is a cozy, comfortable, enclosed car; in warm weather, an ideal Touring car. The plate glass windows are raised or lowered in a minute's time. The Ford Sedan is always in accord with your wishes. Finely upholstered; equipped with electric starting and lighting system; demountable rims and tire carrier in rear; instrument board on dash; the Sedan is a car of convenience and class, and has proven a favorite family car. Yet, the reliable Ford chassis and motor are a part of the Ford Sedan and that means low upkeep cost, ease of operation, and durability. The Ford Sedan is just as popular on the farm as in the city. It fits family needs everywhere.

Come in and see the Ford Sedan. If you want one, place your order now. Orders are filled in the same sequence they are received. Make us your Ford headquarters, as we are experts with the famous "Ford After-Service."

PENNSYLVANIA SYSTEM

Effects of Constipation

Constipation causes a stoppage of the sewerage system of the body. The poisonous refuse matter that should be carried away is retained in the system and often poisons the blood and causes numerous disorders. No one can afford to neglect his bowels. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will afford relief Avoid drastic cathartics as they take too much water out of the system and their use is likely to be followed by constipation.
